

LOUGHTON BUILDING DESIGN AWARDS 2022

Loughton Town Council invites nominations for its Building Design Awards to celebrate great design. The awards aim to give public recognition to recent local building projects in Loughton which make a positive contribution to the local environment.

We encourage local residents, groups and societies as well as architects and developers to send us your nominations. Tell us about schemes in Loughton, large or small, which you think are successful, noteworthy in terms of design or innovation and enhance the town.

Projects should have been completed within the last two years and can include:

New buildings – residential, community, educational, commercial: or

Alterations to an existing building – extensions, refurbishments, conversions or restorations.

The nominations for 2022 Awards are now open and will close on 31 January 2022. Don't forget everyone can nominate a great design in Loughton. Nomination forms can be downloaded from our website at the link below:

We would ask you to consider the following aspects when making a nomination:

Quality – is it of the highest quality in terms of its design, materials used or construction?

Visual Amenity – how well do the alterations relate to the existing building and for a new building does it compliment the neighbourhood?

Innovation – is it an original solution to design or construction problems?

Sustainability – does the project promote environmental issues such as the use of recycled materials, alternative energy sources, waste management and water saving?
